I shall not pass this way again.
Any good thing that I can do,
or any kindness that I can show, let me do it now! Let me not defer or neglect it. For I shall not pass this way again.

—Stephen Grellet

"Yesterday a child came out to wonder Caught a dragonfly inside a jar..."

... Fearful when the sky was full of thunder
And tearful at the falling of a star...

... And the seasons they go 'round and 'round
And the painted ponies go up and down
We're captive on a carousel of time
We can't return we can only look behind from where we came
And go 'round and 'round and 'round in the circle game. . .

I wake to sleep, and take my waking
slow.
I feel my fate in what I cannot fear.
I learn by going where I have to go.

We think by feeling. What is there to know?

I hear my being dance from ear to ear.
I wake to sleep, and take my waking
slow.

Of those so close beside me, which are you?

God bless the Ground! I shall walk
softly there,

And learn by going where I have to go.

Light takes the tree; but who can tell us how?

The lowly worm climbs up the winding stair;

I wake to sleep, and take my waking
slow.

Great nature has another thing to do
To you and me; so take the lively air,
And, lovely, learn by going where to go.

This shaking keeps me steady. I should know.

What falls away is always. And is near.

I wake to sleep, and take my waking
slow.

I learn by going where I have to go.

—Theodore Roethke

I don't think I will ever write
Happy poems but serene poems—
Poems that are posed midway
Between the heart-blast of passion
And the onset of remorse—
Poems that speak of a painful end
That has been weathered and a
Future that is not yet marked
For when I am happy
I have no need of reflection.

—Anonymous

...Then the child moved ten times 'round the seasons
Skating over ten clear frozen streams...

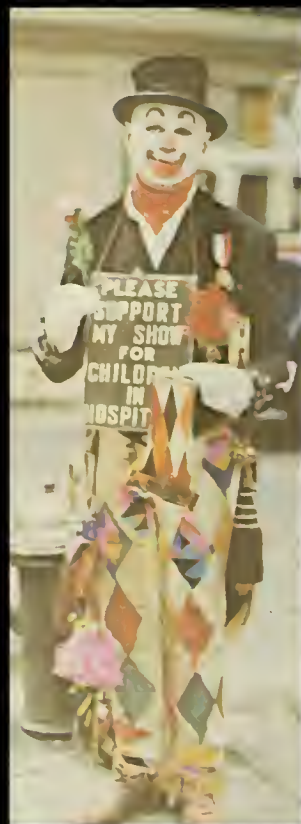

...Words like "when you're older" must appease him
And promises of "someday" make up his dreams...

...Sixteen springs and sixteen summers gone now
Cartwheels turn to carwheels through the town...

...And they tell him "Take your time 'cause it won't be long now
"Til you drag your feet just to slow the circles down"...

... So the years spin by now the child is twenty Though his dreams have lost a lot of grandeur coming true
 But there'll be new dreams, maybe better dreams there'll be plenty
 Before the last revolving year is through."
 —Joni Mitchell

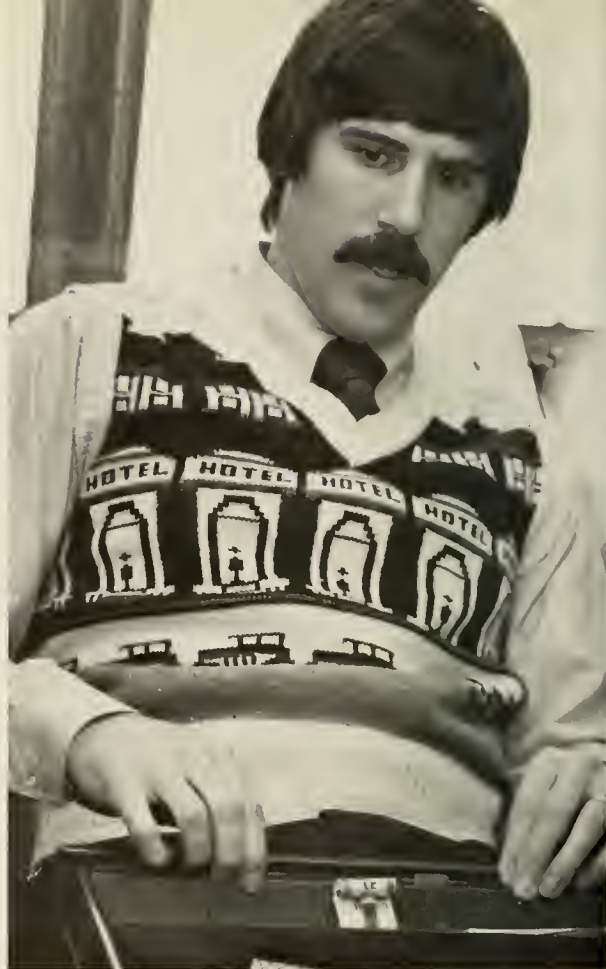

If only dreams and reality were not so far apart.
 —Cervantes

I'd not give room for an Emperor-
I'd hold my road for a King.
To the Triple Crown I'd not bow down-
But this is a different thing!
I'll not fight with the Powers of Air-
Sentries pass him through!
Drawbridge let fall-He's the Lord of us all-
The Dreamer whose dream came true!
—Rudyard Kipling

Dedication:

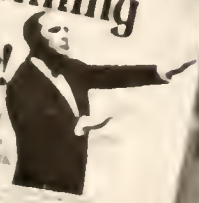

Mr. Ron Flynn

The class of 1977 would like to dedicate this yearbook to Ron Flynn. Through his continuous efforts to keep the student body "entertained" he has helped us maintain our sanity. Ron, was always there to share a joke with...to gripe to...to party with...or to just sit down and talk with, about anything and everything. His many innovations, original ideas, and ways to do things have not gone unnoticed. He has made dynamic changes always tempered with a sense of humor, a sincerity of purpose and a warm and understanding attitude - sympathetic to our needs yet spurring us to new heights. His friendship, dedication and interest in the students have been deeply appreciated and by dedicating this book to him, we are saying, THANKS RON.

"When they were good, they were very very good..."

When they were bad, it was a disappointment, because whether we were willing to recognize it or not, we looked to these individuals for so much: scholarship, challenge, honesty, a willingness to listen to and continue to learn with their students. We have been fortunate in their responses. The faculty here has clearly indicated the high value they place on being our teachers before anything else. For this we are grateful. And perhaps without these individuals we would be different people."

SENIORS

Dean Crawford, Dean Pettit, parents, friends, and fellow classmates.

Tonight is a moment which many of us have waited for for over two years. I speak of thirty students who came here to Columbia, not as juniors but, as freshman. The experiences we have had are unique; for we are the first class of Columbia's four year baccalaureate program in nursing. I'd like to speak a little bit about these experiences.

We came to Columbia with many ideals and expectations of our chosen profession. Most of us had our own conception of what nursing is. However we were straight out of high school and had still more thoughts about college life. We found ourselves in a sea of people who all belonged to something and somewhere and somehow we didn't. No one had ever heard of Columbia School of Nursing. They wanted to know what we were doing taking courses at Barnard and the college. "Why do nurses go to college anyway," is what they all said.

Once our existence did become widely known we became a novelty. We weren't Barnard, Engineering or the college, we were something different. But what that difference was no one was really ready to say.

In the midst of all this confusion we found that many of our ideas about nursing, and about ourselves, were not only changing, but developing. We began to see nursing as a profession that one should choose to go into not one a person settles for if he can't attain a higher goal. Our focus was on the patient as a human being who has emotions and sensitivities, not on an isolated disease or symptom. We saw that a patient should be looked upon as a whole being composed of many complex integral parts. Our nursing interventions included the psychological, and the familial as well as the physical aspects of the patient. We also used these concepts in our interactions outside the nursing sphere.

While this was happening inside of us, environmental factors were occurring which affected us greatly. Main campus changed from a lonely isolated place to home. We were known as "The Nurses" and it was understood that we belonged. Besides nursing we all had many other fields of interest. This became known as we dispersed ourselves into the various clubs and organizations campus life offered. This further added to our sense of belonging.

With the help of all these elements there emerged in our minds the realization that we are not only nursing students but Columbia students. We aren't just nurses, we are individuals with a common goal in life.

Our relocation from main campus to the medical campus was not only physical but academic. All the theories and concepts which we spent those first semesters learning were finally going to be put into practice. We went from a liberal arts program with a small portion of nursing to an intense nursing curriculum which included clinical experiences. As a result of this change we learned a little bit about ourselves as people. Before our third year we had an idealized vision of ourselves as nurses. But as we had actual nurse/patient relationships we began to realize that the time for idealization was over. Now was the time for us to use our skills in communication, in psychology and in pathology to the fullest extent. Now was a time for implementation and development.

At the same time we also realized that anyone could perform the mechanical skills that nursing entails; but it takes a sensitive human being to make a patient feel that he is important, not because he has an interesting illness, but because he is a unique individual. Nursing, we found, is more than giving injections and making tight beds. It's the support, the understanding and the real concern we have about people who happen to be ill. Nursing is caring.

So as we look back on the years behind us we realize that we've learned so much, and in so little time, about ourselves as people and about nursing. As we look ahead we see that we still have a lot to learn.

DEDICATION - R. EIS - February 23, 1977

On behalf of the newest members of the Junior class, the junior transfer students, I would like to welcome you to this dedication program. To all the friends and relatives of students here this evening if we look a little frazzled it's because we just had an examination on the affects of stress and should all be studying for another exam right now. In the past five weeks we've become experts on stress and I can consensually validate all those s/s right now. At times we may feel discouraged with the vast amount of words that we have been exposed to and the seemingly insignificant amount we think we have retained, but we have completed one quarter of our program here at Columbia and there have been changes in us even though we've been too busy to notice them. It was only two months ago that we triumphantly returned home for vacation announcing that we were now one quarter nurses - not really wanting to mention which quarter we thought that might be! It seems so long ago when we couldn't figure out how to keep family and community health separate and how to figure out which class met where and when. This semester we were confronted with the 4 D's - determinants, development, deviations I and deviations II only to be told that contrary to what we may have thought and I quote "There are no D's in deviations!" If you don't think you've come a long way think back to the first time you put on that uniform you're wearing so confidently these days - unintelligent, unthinking, unreasoning, irrational, unwise, inept, inapt, not bright, brainless, dead from the neck up? And the continuous reassurance of the faculty that these feelings would pass and that someday when a patient calls nurse you won't look behind you to find out who he's talking to. The change is gradual. It's happening already - try spouting off a few of your nursing diagnoses or some of the pathophysiology you've been pulling your hair out over and your relatives and friends will stop what they're doing, stare with awe and amazement - and if you're not fast enough, probably try to wash your mouth out with some soap!

Seriously, as a group we have been admonished by some, for an apparent lack of school spirit or unity. We are all individuals who came from many varied educational backgrounds and geographical settings and yet in this short time we have distinguished ourselves as a class - one to be respected and reckoned with. We have shown an intense loyalty and dedication to our studies, our clinical experience and our relationships with others. This dedication will make us not only the best people we can be but also the best nurses we can be and to this end I believe our class is off to a great start. I wish you all luck and the strength to persevere and maintain this high level of conscientiousness during the remainder of our experience here at Columbia and throughout our experiences as professional nurses.

STUDENT LIFE

"Oh! My anterior, superior iliac crest..."

"Wanna study A + P together?"

"We certainly may be few in numbers but, you can't beat these odds!"

"Is that what Anne Kellet said in lecture?"

The Final Flush

"And you know, he's not the one who called her last night."

"Martha Rogers???"

"Who ever thought we'd toast Deviations I and II?"

*"I never liked urine until I got to nursing school."
— E. Goldberg*

"Would you please be quiet? I'm trying to sleep!"

*"You give but little when you give of your possessions.
It is when you give of yourself that you truly give."
—Gibran*

"Maybe they copied my Social Security number wrong..."

"1...2...3...GER-ON-A-MO!"

"Sit down??? Who has time for that!"

"Technical skills, technical skills and more technical skills!"

"Well Columbia, here I am!"

"I wonder what self-regulatory process this is?"

"...One pill makes you larger, and one pill makes you smaller..."

—Lewis Carroll

C.U.S.N. Class of 1999.

"Nothing comes easy...dah da dah da."

"Ready, aim ..."

"Where's Anne Kellet and her decision making theories when we need her most?"

"Im...sq...IV...po???"

"Give blood, play rugby."

"And where were you when Noah took his revenge???"

Long Library flood, January 30, 1977

Damn Yankees - December 1977

*Friday Night
Cocktail Parties*

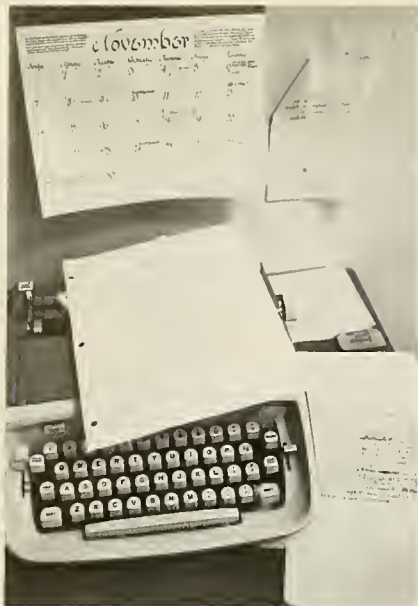

"Are you a ... MEDICAL STUDENT???"

"We found happiness at the Bard Cocktail Parties, so can you!"

"Another round!"

"Did you complete your objectives?"

"Do I really have a choice?"

Career Night 1977

If all else fails, there's always the Army."

"Take me I'm yours!"

*"How can they test us on pure fiction?"

Dr. Carolyn B. Stanek

Dr. Carolyn Stanek has shown genuine understanding and concern for us in all aspects of our student life. She taught and worked with us in A&P, Deviations and many other projects we undertook. She was always available to listen and give advice. As a truly dynamic teacher devoted to the student body, as well as her discipline, we the Class of 1977 show our appreciation.
